

BM

Bailah's Family

Vol. 1

My family is the most important part of my life!

By Bailah Mc Kenzie

Hello girls and boys from all around the world. My name is Bailah. I am an only child but I am happy and I know there are a lot of children who understand what I mean
by being an only child.
It's okay some days and
then some days it sucks
because I don't have anyone to play with but I have my family and my imagination!

I have a lot of opinions about things. At least that's what I have been told. My mother says I don't listen, but I want to listen and learn. I guess sometimes I just want to try and figure things out on my own but that will come with time and experience. It's like learning to count and read and tie your shoes. I am learning to do all this and to tell time

I was born with two parents but now I only have one. My dad was in my life until him and his ex girlfriend tried to take me away from my mommy. I was only two years old when this happened so I don't remember alot of it but I do remember his ex girlfriend was mean. I'm so glad my mommy and grandmommy didn't stop fighting for me to come back home.

I remember watching the wizard of oz and dorothy saying there is no place like home. It brought me to tears because I remember when my mommy came to get me from my dad's I would say. Were home. I'm home again. I cried a lot missing my mommy and grandmommy. I am so glad I no longer have to worry about being taken away from them again.

Wow I am seven years old but I'm told I am an old soul. I just have a lot of questions. You know like why does the moon keep following us when we go somewhere in the car? Why can't I have chocolate all day everyday because it's so good. Why can't I jump up and down in the bed? Isn't that what the mattress is for? Hahaha I don't know I'm just a kid.

I know you have had questions that adults shrug off as foolishness but hey I just wonder why? Why Why Why hahaha. It's nothing wrong with asking why. Just don't ask it over and over again in the same day. My mommy say's I am so smart and wonderful when I am not getting on her nerves.

Hahaha. What does your mom and dad say about you?
if you only have one

Parent in your home that's okay, as long as they love and protect you. I have a good memory. What about you? What can you remember as a little boy or girl. I love animals and the sky and the ocean. I was born in California. I lived there for seven years. I'm on the east coast now. I have many memories of going to the pacific ocean. I almost drowned one day one day when I was two. My grandmother let go of my hand and I took off running towards the Ocean at Newport Beach but she grabbed me just in time but the wave did knock us both off of our feet. I was surprised but laughing because I was floating in the water. I learned not to do that again.

Hahahaha. Life is so amazing.

Now I can I go and see the atlantic ocean.

it's an old saying curiosity killed the cat, but I believe the cat has nine lives so he or she doesn't really die or do they? There I go having an opinion again. Well life is full of questions some can be answered easily and some not so much. I'm sure I will grow up if the Lord allows and asks more and more questions. like why doesn't money grow on trees? It's green! Why can't we breathe under water? Why can't we fly way up into the sky without using a plane? I'd love to be able to fly. I'm saddened when I see people stranded because of natural disasters. I think to myself if only they could fly. Then I guess there would be a lot of traffic in the sky. Hahaha oh well those are some of the questions I have as a seven year old. We all have a why or how? I'm so glad I can find them out with my family. So be happy if you have a mom or dad or both. That loves and protects you, as you grow listening and learning, to ask questions and learn why the answers matter or not. Be happy and enjoy your childhood for we only get one shot!

